COURT TO BE SHAKEN

Many Changes Come with New English King.

SCARE RE-ESTIMATED

Friendliness Between George and the Kaiser Taken to Indicate Crisis Between Germany and Great Britain Will Be Averted-Political Situation to Be Different,

London, May 15 .- The death of King Edward will have a greater effect on the immediate destinles of peace than any personal event, with possibly the exception of the demise of the German Em-

Only those intimately acquainted with both the written and unwritten political history of the last nine years know how great a figure was Edward in controlling great issues in a time of an international crisis of the first magnitude. His influence was the more conspicuous, perhaps, because British public life contains to-day no statesman in either party of more than mediocre ability.

This makes England's sense of loss the keener. Never in modern times have the difficulties and dangers which confront the empire been discussed among Englishmen with greater anxiety than during the last week. The press, of course, has not voiced the popular fears and forebodings. It never does in a serious crisis.

Court to Be Shaken Up.

The new court will be very different from that of King Edward. Some coni spicuous figures will disappear, and the court of King George will bear a closer resemblance to that of Queen Victoria. Now that King Edward is gone, it is possible to give some hint of the paradoxical effect of his death. His influence, as all the world knows, was more powerful for peace than that of any man of modern times, yet, curiously enough his death removes one cause of friction between England and Germany,

A certain personal antagonism existed between King Edward and the Kaiser since the latter came to the throne. The personal relations of Emperor William and King George are the friendliest.

Arrangements for Funeral.

The official arrangements for the removal of the King's body to Westminster Hall were made public to-night. King George, with his two eldest sons, will walk in the procession immediately be hind the gun carriage on which the coffin will be borne. The foreign royalties now here, as well as the male members of the British royal family, will also follow on foot. Queen Mary, the Queen mother, and the other women of the royal family and their suites will drive in carriages.

The orders for the funeral procession on May 20 have not yet been issued, and until they are officially published the solution of the problem of precedence of the foreign delegates will not be known. It is understood that sovereign rank and kinship decide that next to King George naught, the Kings of Greece, Denmark Spain, Norway, Portugal, and Belgium. and the Grand Duke Michael, represent ing the Czar, these being followed by Mr. Roosevelt and M. Pichon, the French foreign minister, with the other members of the French delegation.

The republican representatives would thus have precedence of the Austrian. Italian, Netherlands, Swedish, and Japanese delegates, and many other representatives of monarchies, Praise for Col. Roosevelt.

The morning papers give much space to the special envoy of America to the king's funeral. Special articles deal with Mr. Roosevelt's career in the United States, and regret that his coming is overshadowed by the British national sorrow and that he comes as chief mourner teresting private guest who would have been sure of an enthusiastic welcome. They assure him his welcome will be none the less sincere because it is restrained by the sad circumstances of the

HELPFUL NEIGHBORS.

When I am sick I might endure it, if I could nurse my ill alone; but neighbors tell me how to cure it, and fill my soul with grief and groan. Corns hurt my foot-I thought they'd spoil itthe neighbors hastened to my door; "cut off your foot," they said, "and boil it, and you will have the corns no more." I had a dose of influenzy-have you e'er had that blamed disease? It fairly drives you to a frenzy; you gasp, and cough, and choke, and sneeze; you whistle when you breathe, and smother, your lungs seem full of carpet tacks, and oft you wish some kindly brother would hit you with a battleax. And while I howled around in sorrow, one neighbor said: "Drink kerosene, and you'll be prancing 'round to-morrow as chipper as a colt, I ween." Another said: "Mix Iye and whisky, and drink a gallon, smoking hot; in half an hour you'll feel so frisky, they'll have to hold you down, I wot." Another came, a bearded Druid, who through his snowy whiskers hissed: "Fill up with good embalming fluid, and you will be all right, I wist." Oh, oftentimes I feel like thunder, my works seem always out of plumb; at such times, is it any wonder I hate to see the neighbors come? WALT MASON. (Copyright, 1910, by George Matthew Adams.) "

Delivers Lawler's Draft.

He then delivered to me the draft opinion prepared by Mr. Lawler, and said that he had had an opportunity on coming to New York to read the answers of Mr. Ballinger and others. I then said to him that I had made up my mind as to my conclusions, and had drafted part of my opinion, but that I wished him to examine the full record and bring me his conclusions before I stated mine. He took the whole record.

During the day I examined the draft opinion of Mr. Lawler, but its thirty pages did not state the case in the way in which I wished it stated. It contained references to the evidence which were useful, but its criticisms of Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Glavis I did not think it proper or wise to adopt. I only used a few paragraphs from it, containing merely general statements.

The Attorney General returned in the evening with notes of the examination which he had made, and reported to me the conclusions which he had reached, which were in substantial accord with my own. We then discussed the matter at some length, particularly some points of law which were involved, and took up the opinion which I had finished and made a number of alterations, and as a result of that discussion I determined the final form which I employed, and signed the same on Monday, September 13.

Basis for Conclusion,

The conclusions which I reached were based upon my reading of the record, and were fortified by the oral clusions which the Attorney General gave me, using the notes which he had made during his reading of the
